

(Boyle's Law)

110/51

The law is in this sense an idealized one, and therefore it is not surprising that in practice it is never found to be quite truly fulfilled. It is an approximation to the greater reality.

H Levy The universe of science p. 37